- Investors in index-linked government bonds or gilts will realize returns on their investments in government debt in product line with the RPI measurement of inflation. And those with defined benefit (DB) or "pay as you earn" pension schemes are currently invested in these gilts to the tune of £470bn. Estimates by members of the Association of British Insurers (ABI) suggest that implementing the proposed changes in 2025 could leave a gap of £122bn by reducing the price of index-linked gilts. Even the modest proposed reduction in 2030 would only reduce the gap to £96bn, they estimate. Contingent on their age and the timing of the changes, some DB pension members will fall back a median of 4-9 per cent of their sum of money lifetime pension income, the Pensions and Lifetime Savings Association (PLSA) has warned.
